SCOTT WILSON

---

Born in 1968, Chicago-based “disruptor” Scott Wilson creates emotionally resonant, yet practical objects for human use intended to positively impact the lives of those who use them.

His conversion kit to transform an iPod Nano into the first “Apple Watch” was Kickstarter’s first real success story. Created through his consultancy MINIMAL, Wilson’s designs for everything from medical tools to video game systems have gone on to win recognition and awards across multiple categories including, in 2012, the Cooper-Hewitt National Design Award for excellence.

INNOVATION

Winner of the prestigious iF Design Award 2015 and Compasso d'Oro Honorable mention 2016, Scott Wilson's Sisifo is a hybrid luminaire that balances task and ambient light. Sisifo delivers high-efficiency LED lighting that utilizes a fresnel pattern to evenly spread light while eliminating shadows.

INTERACTIVITY

With its spherical central articulation, Sisifo's diffused disk of light gracefully balances and effortlessly rotates 360° degrees. The small footprint weighted base and double ball joint allow the lamp head and the light source to adjust for any application. Its intuitive on/off touch dimmer control at the front of the base invites user interaction to meet all lighting needs.

MINIMAL

---

Sisifo's minimal design produces maximum light quality. From the moment the lamp is switched on, there is a noticeable "wow" factor. Its controls are crisp, its movements are smooth, and its light is soft, while highly performant.
